US Surgeon General Calls for Censorship by Big Tech

The US surgeon general has called for a war against Covid-19 “misinformation”, saying that it is urgent for our health.

With more than a third of Americans unvaccinated against Covid-19, the surgeon general states that ending the spread of misinformation is crucial to ending the pandemic.

Misinformation appears to be any information that questions the mainstream narrative. Both the left and the right have experienced massive amounts of censorship in months following the Covid-19 outbreak.

Big tech has censored medical experts, doctors, and front-line workers working closely with Covid-19. In a recent video, Kim Iverson lists a plethora of doctors and medical experts who have been censored by big tech.

Just months ago those who spoke out against ventilators or questioned the origin of the coronavirus were censored whereas now the mainstream narrative has changed.

This makes one wonder what information is being questioned right now that soon be questioned by the mainstream media.
