

Federal Court Blocks Biden's Vaccine Mandate for Businesses

Biden's vaccine mandate has been temporarily halted by a federal judge. Biden's vaccine mandate required private businesses with more than 100 employees to mandate vaccines.

The fifth US circuit court of appeals allowed an emergency stay of the requirement by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Many governors argued it "overstepped the administration's legal authority".

The president will not impose medical procedures on the American people without the checks and balances afforded by the constitution.

–Louisiana Attorney General Jeff Landry

The White House told businesses to continue with vaccine mandates despite the pause.

At least 27 states have filed lawsuits against the mandate.
