

Man Stabbed at Anti-Vaccine Rally in Los Angeles

A man was stabbed in an anti-vaccine rally in downtown Los Angeles this past week. Organizers gathered to protest against vaccine requirements implemented in Los Angeles and San Francisco. People are required to be vaccinated to enter bars, restaurants, movie theatres, and gyms.

Organizers held the demonstration to decry coronavirus mask mandates like the one implemented in Los Angeles County last month, and vaccine requirements like the stipulations for entering many establishments in San Francisco instituted this week.

A counter-protest with a pro-vaccine took place in front of City Hall. After high tensions, fistfights, mace, and death threats someone was stabbed.

It was estimated that several hundred anti-vax protesters were in attendance with several dozen pro-vaccine protestors.

Previously anti-vax protestors shut down the Dodgers Stadium vaccination site protesting while carrying signs.
