

Mexico's Health Minister Does Not Recommend Vaccine for Children

Mexico's health minister, Jorge Alcocer has said that Covid-19 vaccines could inhibit the development of children's immune systems.

Children are at less risk from covid than the flu.

Alcocer made the remarks a week and a half after claiming that vaccinating children against COVID-19 could have a "limiting" effect on the development of their immune systems. He said Tuesday that he wouldn't vaccinate his grandchildren.

Health minister insists vaccination not beneficial for children

Alcocer said children have "wonderful immune systems" compared to the "later phases of life" and it is not the right thing to do to hinder the development of their immune system with the vaccine.
