

Sunburst Diffuser by Drops of Joy Jewelry – Product Review

I admit it; I love jewelry. My collection is pretty impressive. When Drops of Joy Jewelry asked me to do a product review, I didn't warn them. They had no idea I was a hard-to-please, discerning collector who would tell it like it is with no hesitation. But there was no need. I loved the locket they sent to me.

The company is aptly named. Drops of Joy is a reference to their jewelry's functionality. That's right, this is jewelry with a purpose – aromatherapy diffusion. They brag by stating, "Our jewelry smells better than yours!" There is another way this company spreads joy. They donate $2.00 for every item sold to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. St. Jude is the charity hospital that never charges families for travel, housing, food, or their child's treatment.

The locket I received is called the Sunburst Diffuser. It is both beautiful and surprisingly sturdy. This is not the typical, delicate, silver-plated jewelry we've come to know with a finish that will flake off or hinges that will bend and break. This is a locket made of hefty, solid, stainless steel with a strong magnetic closure. I found myself playing with it – opening and closing it a dozen times because I liked the feel and weight of it.

The locket comes with three responsibly sourced leather dots. To use the locket as a diffuser, simply saturate the dot with your choice of oil or a combination of oils and insert it into the locket. If you are a vegan or for any reason you do not wish to use leather inserts, a substitution of felt inserts can be made upon request. You can also choose your length of chain (16, 18, 20, or 22 inches) for no extra charge. And shipping is free throughout the United States!

If you use essential oils, or even if you don't, check out this lovely collection at Drops of Joy Jewelry. Stock up for gift giving, but don't neglect yourself.
