Trump Says Increased COVID Vaccine Requirements is a Political Move

The drama surrounding COVID-19 vaccines continues as President Trump suggested that the executive branch would not support stricter guidelines for evaluating a COVID-19 vaccine. If approved, the new guidelines from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) would include additional specifications for clinical trial data and a committee of independent experts to review that data before any vaccine is approved. President Trump continues to promise a vaccine before the end of the year, despite experts saying that is unlikely. Trump asserted that the plan to introduce more guidelines was political in nature.

Related: Natural Coronavirus Prevention

> That has to be approved by the White House. We may or may not approve it. That sounds like a political move. I think that was a political move more than anything else…"
>
> President Trump

This announcement will add fuel to the growing anti-Trump-vaxxer movement taking place in the Democratic party. Vice presidential nominee Kamala Harris cast doubt on the efficacy and safety of a COVID-19 vaccine implemented during a Trump presidency earlier in September.

> I will say that I would not trust Donald Trump, and it would have to be a credible source of information that talks about the efficacy and the reliability of whatever he's talking about….I will not take his word for it."
>
> Senator Kamala Harris

Related: How To Detoxify and Heal From Vaccinations – For Adults and Children